City Within a City

On a blustery day early in the New Year, a big TCA North Star airliner settled down on the Edmonton airport, and out stepped L. E. Detwiler, representative of New York's First New Amsterdam Corporation.

With him Detwiler brought plans for the With him Detwiler brought plans for the greatest civic development program ever attempted in Canada—a virtual city within a city. Dubbed the "Miracle Mile" project, it would include modern office skyscrapers, auditorium, vast parking facilities and other commercial and cultural facilities.

Estimated cost of the project is about 255,000,000, and the remotive researched.

$25,000,000, and the corporation represented by Detwiler is seeking certain tax concessions, a 99-year lease, in return for which it promises to erect the project, and pay the city a liberal yearly rental.

The Detwiler deal is the luckiest proposi-on that ever fell into Edmonton's lap, itizens, business leaders, and the city administration should bend every effort to see that the Miracle Mile becomes established reality, and not just a dream.

Let's Abolish Hanging

Last week Canada's Liberal government had an excellent opportunity to take a major step forward in the field of social welfare, by passing a bill introduced by Ross Thatcher (CCF-Sask.), that would abolish capital punishment. Unfortunately, the government failed to do so, presumably because the spokesmen who defeated the measure cast their opinion without properly looking into the matter. the matter.

their opinion without properly looking into the matter.

Canada prides itself as being one of the sanest countries in the world, and one of the most advanced in the field of social welfare. Yet the politicians at Ottawa just can't get it through their heads that hanging does not serve as a deterrent to murder, that such offences have actually decreased in the places where capital punishment has been abolished, and that it is a barbarian, unjust, and not at all practical means of gaining revenge, harking back to the dim days prior to Christ. In Edmonton in recent weeks three murder cases have been dealt with in supreme court. In one, a man was acquitted, while the other accused with him was sentenced to die, and in the third case, a young woman was found not guilty.

One of the reasons that many are acquitted is that the jury is reluctant to bring in a verded of guilty when such drastic punishmone procedout. That is because more and more procedout. That is because more and more procedout. The placent is a mental patient, that murder is seldom pre-conceived and that nothing — nothing whatsever—can'd that nothing — nothing whatsever—can'd in the place who have been falsely convicted, and have hanged for another's crime.

Person-to-Person Advertising

Whether you, as a businessman, claim to believe in advertising or not—you can never actually halt advertising of your firm. You can only suspend that part, such as newspaper advertising, over which you have direct advertising, over which you have direct control.

In ever-increasing volume, the part you do not and cannot control will roll on: the advertising created by idle tales, by mis-information and actually by the fact you may not be providing any information at all, to those with whom you want to do business, will travel fast by swift gossip.

If you advertising springs from misinformation, it can do you harm. You can control it, in a very small way, by person-to-person contact. But you cannot hope to reach all the people you should in the course of one week. Chances are, you reach only those who are favorable to you to start with—and your advertising greets only those whom you already have as customers.

Alexander Botts And a Slimming Diet

By T. W. PUE

Readers of this column may ask the question: Who is Alexander Botts?

That's a good question. Alexander Botts is my favorite fiction character, and stories about him appear from time to time in the Saturday Evening Post, authored by William Hazlett Upson.

Botts is a screwy travelling salesman for the Earthworm Tractor Company who always starts off in the narrative in one heck of a situation, far from head office. He wires frantically for small sums of $50,000 or more to Gilbert Henderson, the nit-wit sales manager of the company. No matter how difficult his plight, however, Botts never gets any co-operation from Henderson, but always pulls out of his troubles, and ends each adventure with the sale of at least a dozen of those inimi-table Earthworm tractors.

So writes author Upson, and I never fail to get a kick out of these stories. Reminds me of the situations I've run into in my travels. I recall how I wired frantically from Quebec City to head office of McFadden Quebec City to head office of McFadden Publications in New York when the local dealer threatened to throw me out on my ear the next time I called to tell him his franchise was terminated. Like all travel-lers, I suppose, I've had a lot in common with Alexander Botts—and his creator, Upson, who was a traveller once himself.

Unson On Diet

Upson On Diet

This man Upson probably still travels, but having hit pay dirt in the columns of the wealthy Curtis Publishing Company, will never likely go back on the road as a travelling salesman. He has lots of money in his pocket and lots of time to sit around in railway club cars and luxurious hotel lounges to dream up further adventures for Alexander. to dream up further adventures for Alexander Botts. Digging a Grave
You could say that Mr. and Mrs. Upson were digging their graves with their teeth. Overweight people die sooner than thinner folk. The fatter you get, the harder strain you put on your heart and other organs. These wear out sooner—and so the obese person dies sooner, and has, you might say, dug his grave with his teeth.
Upson says he wasn't willing to exercise nor to go around hungry all day, day after day. So he decided to eat only certain kinds of food, eat all he could and still lose weight.

Quality, Not Quantity

The kinds of foods the Upsons eat make all the difference. They avoid foods with sugars, starches and fats. Eat plenty of fruits, most vegetables such as spinach, lettuce, cabbage, etc., and all the lean meats

Bread, pastries, cake, potatoes, butter, cream, fat meat isn't on the Upson diet until and here's the wonderful part of it all—they. find themselves actually underweight!

Dear Sir-I was astounded when read in a recent edition, the letter from a Hardisty man who stated, and I quote: "Canadian females are 100 per cent barflies and will take a man for every cent he has." Also that he prefers European women.

GOV'T MAY FACE PENSION CRISIS

The St. Laurent Government is going to be faced with a "guns versus pensions" di-lemma in 1951, says Kenneth R. Wilson, Ottawa editor of The Financial Post.

The dilemma is being brought into sharp focus for the first time by the expectation that the Parliamentary Committee on Old Age Pensians will rec-ommend at least $40 a month,

The-new social security program would require at least $225 millions more than at present, and a further $60 millions if means test pen-

Meanwhile, Canada's new responsibilities under the Atlantic Pact are almost cer-tain to increase defense costs

Poison ivy is the only native Canadian plant with a three-parted leaf and white fruit and Dr. Senn points out that it is sometimes onfused with Virginia creeper; but this has five-parted leaves and blue fruit. The leaves of the poison ivp are arranged alternately on the roody stem, each leaf being con posed of three leaflets, which is a constant character. Individual leaflets, however, vary in shape, size, texture and color and the margins may be entire or variously coarse toothed. In the spring the unfolding crinkly leaves of the poison ivy are noticeably reddish, later becoming green with a smooth, glassy surface.

Experienced picnickers know that one of the first things to be done on arriving at an unknown spot is to explore it and the surundings for the possible presence of poison ivy. It generally grows as a trailing vine or an upright

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON:

Jonah Was Called By God To Preach to Heathens

The Book of Jonah is entirely biographical, giving details of the doings of a member of the Jewish race, who was called by God to preach to the heathen people in the great city of Ninevah.

When the first call of God came to Jonah to preach to the people of Nineveh, the mission was so utterly displeasing to him that he fled from his native city, took a ship at Joppa, the principal seaport of Palestine, intending to sail as far as he could at that time, to Tarshish, which is believed to have been in southeastern Spain.

However, as a punishment for his unwillingness and his disboedience, a terrible storm rose while he was at sea. The sailors, in a panie of fear, decided that there was someone on board the ship who was the cause of their danger. They east lots and Jonah was chosen as the cause of the displeasure. He confessed his guilt and was thrown overboard only lo be swallowed by a great fish prepared by the Lord, and later coughed up by the fish, fully salive and rational, with a clear recoughed up by the fish, fully alive and rational, with a clear re-membrance of all that had happened to him. While our less not concerned with this experi-ence of Jonah, it might be well to state here that the historicity of state nere that the historicity of this famous event need no longer be doubted because so much in-disputable evidence of different kinds is available today to confirm the statements of this period.

A new period in Jonah's life began after his experience. He is thought to have hurried back to his native city. Jérusalien, to give thanks to God for his deliverance and to resume his prophetic work. However, a second call come to Jonah from God. "Arise, go into Nineveh, that great city, and preach unto it the preaching that I bid thee." Especially fitted this time for the task by the memory of his remarkable experience, Jonah took advantages of his second chance to do the work commanded by God. new period in Jonah's life

His message of warning to the cople of Nineveh that unless people of Nineveh that unless they repented of their sins and turned unto God, they and their city would be destroyed, had a remarkable effect on the people. They believed his message and ac-cepted the warning. Even the king of the people repented, put-ting on the outward sign of re-pentance, sack cloth, and order-ing all the people to dilkewise. They begged God for mercy and turned from their wil way. The Bible said they turned from their "violence," which was the outviolence." which was the standing crime of the city's bloody history. When God really enters history. When God really enters a man's heart, that man, or wo-man, knows at once, without questioning, just what thing in his, or her, life which is wrong and which must be given up.

Seeing their repentance and that they had turned from their evil way, God repented of "the evil which he said he would do unto them; and he did it not."

While it is evident that the repentance of the Ninevites was not so long-lasting, because they soon went back to their former ways. God forgave them, as he ways. God forgave them, as he forgives us, being anxious to extend his grace to them.

The action of God, however, seems to have been very displeasing unto Jonah. Being a Jew, first and foremost, Jonah could first and foremost, Jonah could not escape the nationalistic feel-ing common to his race and ap-parently could not help but delight in the misfortunes which came to those of other races round about. When God spared the city of Nineveh, Jonah be-came desponded and grieved, for he felt that God had lost a good omorphisity of wining out a city opportunity of wiping out a city which would some day become the enemy of the Jews.

Instead of delighting in the sal-vation of the people in Nineveh and going back to his work in Jerand going back to his work in Jer-usalem with good heart, Jonah sulked. God remonstrated with him because of his anger but to no avail. To protect him from the intense heat of the desert sun, God caused a vine to grop up sun, God caused a vine to grop up over his head with almost magical swittness. This pleased Jonah greatly but, as quickly as it grew God caused it to wither. This angered the prophet so much that he expressed a wish to die, Jonah had loat his sense of perspective. The sense of the sense of the sense of the property of the lives of thousands of people from destruction, but "sook great content" when the same God provided safety from the burning sun for his own comfort. God said, "Thou hast had regard for the gourd, for which thou hast not labored, neither madest it grow ... And should not I have regard for Ninewah, that great city, over his head with almost magithousand person . . . ?"

Dr. Campbell Morgan declares:
"God cares for the suffering, the dying, the dead world. Whatever the conditions of men may be, or whatever the sin the voice of God is heard saying, 'Should not I whatever the success that is heard saying, 'Should not I have pity?' Both Jonah and Jesus beheld the city and wept over it. Thus the voices of Jonah today to know God, but to be in sympathy with Him, to feel His pity, to carry out His ctivity and to show to men what God he really it."

Grasshopper Menace Feared Returning Once Again

By PAUL HUXLEY
A near-sighted insect with five eyes, whose hearing apparatus and part of its breathing system are in its belly, and which makes a "fiddling" sound by chafing the rim of the fore-wing with a file on the side of the leg—that's the pesky grasshopper.

The locust or grasshopper has in some backward countries, the destruction caused was so severe that the unfortunate inhabitants were obliged, like John the Baptist of old, to est the locusta. Over a century soo, the young struggling Mormon colony in Utah could have lost its crops and maybe perished, through a huge grasshopper "invasion". Fortunately, a large flight of seaguils intrived on the seems coon afterwards, and quickly devoured those insects. Today in Sait Lake City, the beautiful Mormon capital, an imposing monument, with a seaguil at the top, commemorates that timely deliverance.

The saucers vary in size, Taylor says, from small white disks 20 inches wide to big ones 250 feet across. Nearly all are round; some across. Nearly all are round; some are flat and edged up like sauc-ers, others are raised in the centre like a pie. Some are guided, others are not. They emit no stream of light or smoke, have no indication of a propelling mechanism, and no sound. They can stand stationary in the air, then dash off to right or left with increasing speed. Their function is an important military secret.

Nine out of ten reports of flying saucers are due to imagination or saucers are due to imagination or confusion, Taylor states. But several have been substantiated. Dear Louisa. - I have gone steady with a young boy for about six months now. He is the nicest boy I have ever known and about the only one I really care to go out with, but my parents don't seem to like him.

They have never forbidden me to go out with him but yet they don't seem to like him. I don't know if should keep on going with him or if I should quit him and pick un just any kind of a guy just to satisfy my parents. Please help

"WORRIED."

Answer - Yours is certainly a touchy problem, "Worried". My advice to you is that you would be best off to try and find out why it is your parents don't seem to care for your boy friend.

Perhaps they have heard some malicious gossip about him, or perhaps they know something they do not want to tell you for fear of hurting you.

If you really care for this boy as much as you say you do, though, don't drop him because of the problem you don't understand. Per-haps in talking to him, you can find some inkling of why your folks don't care for him. And if he is really a nice boy, your parents will no doubt come to like him in time just as you do.

The fact that they have never forbidden you to go out with him is at least a good sign, so just let time and commonsense bring the solution to your trouble, and prob-ably everything will turn out fine. ASSISTANT DISTRICT REST

But now his letters are chang-ing although he still says he loves me. I've changed a lot but I want to know could he possibly love me after all these years?

The ever-increasing performance and efficiency of the tractor during the first part of this century does not mean that in the near future the horse will have disappeared as a factor of importance in world agriculture, says an editorial of "World Crops," a magazine published in Great Britain and distributed throughout the world.

According to this article, there is no reason to believe, as some prophets do, that the horse "will survive merely as an instrument for sport and recreation, a charming relic of a bygone age." On the contrary, writes the editorialist, the horse has, and will continue to have, a definite part to play in the farm economy for many years to come and, indeed, indefinitely.
